Security and Me

MOTIVATING JENNY

Read Me

Security and Me is a self-assessment questionnaire designed to help developers learn more about how they approach work and security.

The questionnaire asks questions about four areas:

- The participant's sense of who and where they are in their career
- Particular details about work activities in the current job or employment
- What energises or gets a participant down in daily work
- How the participant responds to security on the job

Together the answers form a profile that developers can reflect upon and compare with those of colleagues to gain a sense for how different personal attributes contribute to the way security is handed in teams, projects and departments.
