

Example 2

Interview

- similarity: looks, feeling, features of a concept, function, purpose
- chairs: "You can't compare those three, can you? Actually, you can: they have legs, and seats"
- contrast: "striking difference, like opposites, but also two things have to be comparable in some ways"
- [elephants]: "I think you can compare them, it depends on what: people carried? Free will? The outcome is different."

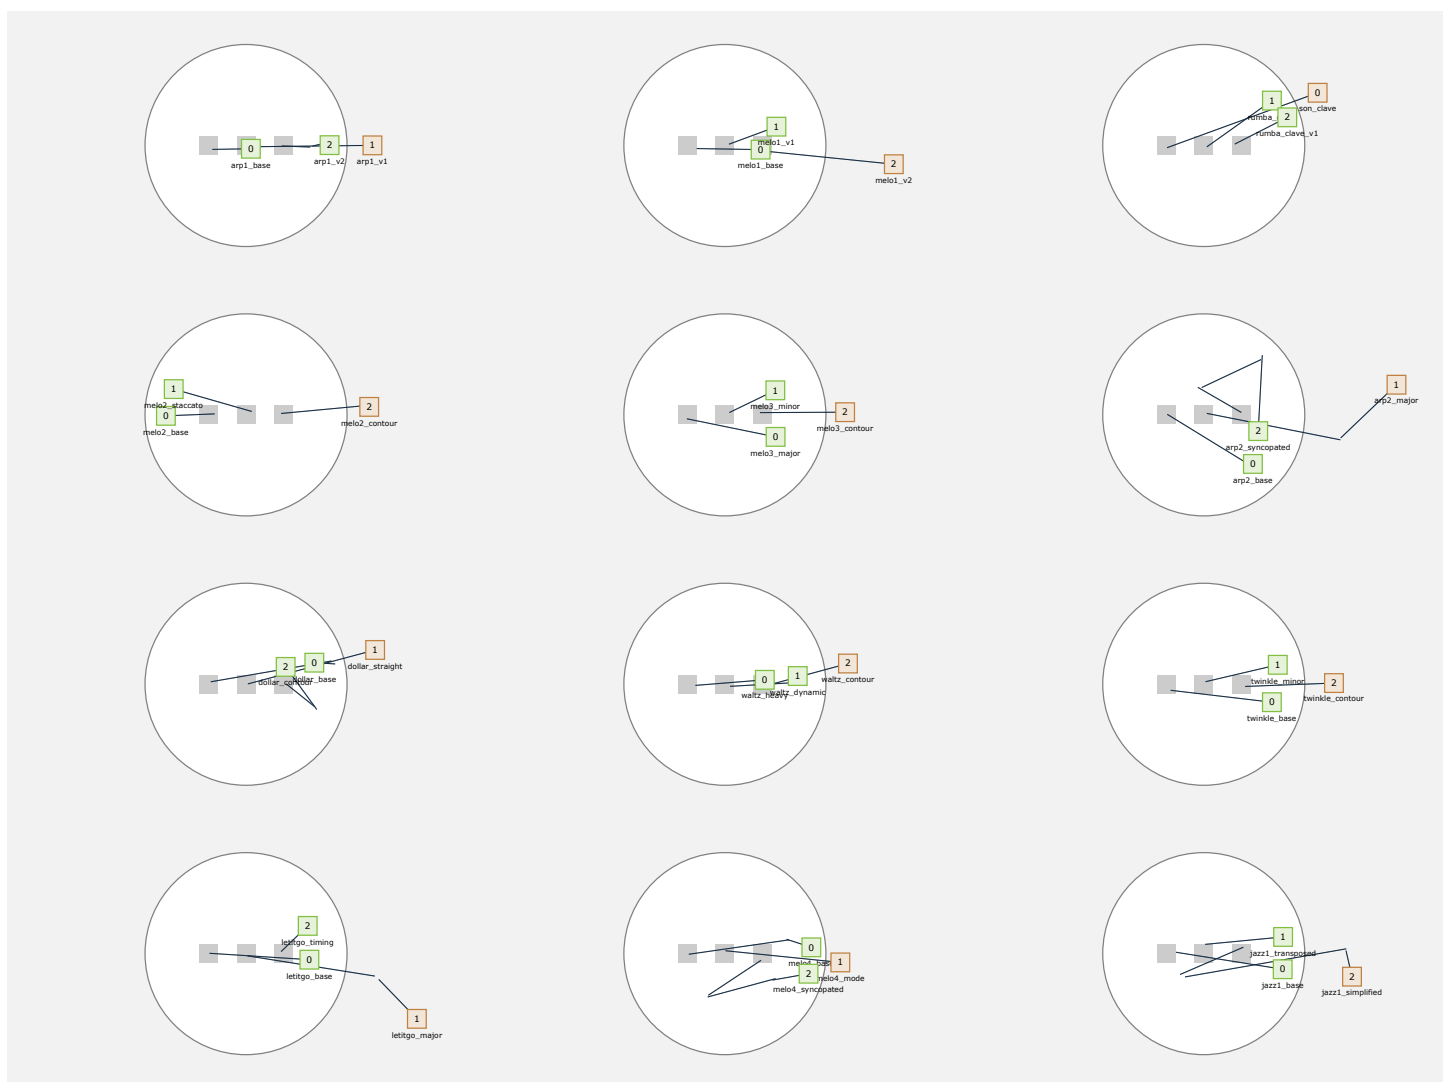

similarity

perceivable features
partial features
function

contrast

relatedness
comparability
opposite

Listening and classification

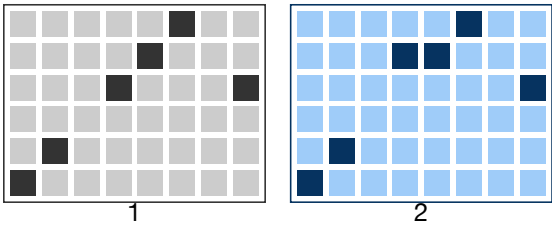

Challenge-Response exercise

Presentation 1

attempts: 1

type: similar

comment: keep rhythm, similar notes

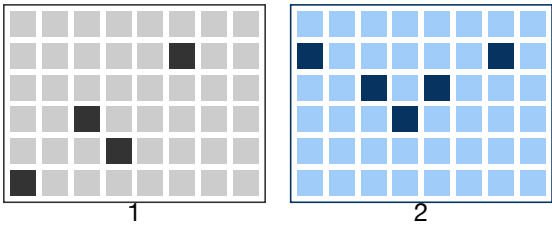

Presentation 2

attempts: 1

type: contrasting

comment: very different, stays up

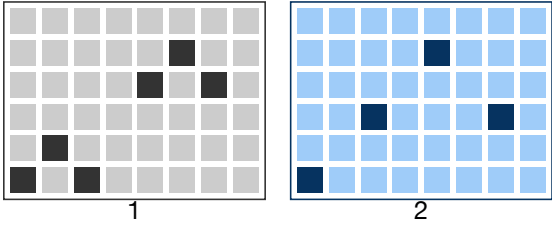

Presentation 3

attempts: 1

type: contrasting

comment: slower, similar contour (up/down)

Presentation 4

attempts: 1

type: similar

comment: same rhythm, keeps flow

Presentation 5

attempts: 1

type: contrasting

comment: "doesn't feel the same rhythm to me"

Presentation 6

attempts: 1

type: similar

comment: "flows nicely, it's a continuation"

Presentation 7

attempts: 1

type: contrasting

comment: "very different rhythm!"

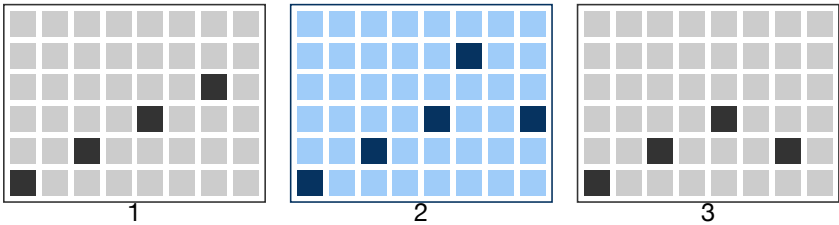

Fill-the-gaps exercise

Presentation 1

attempts: 1

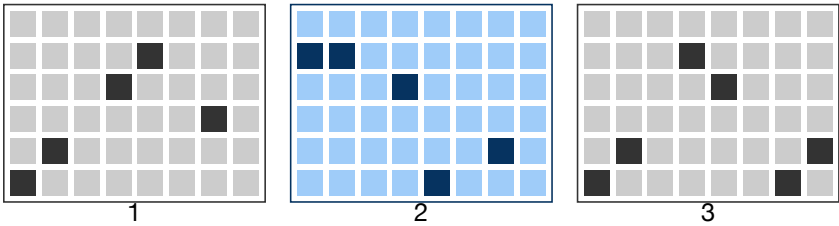

comment: "trying to jump higher, then resting"

Presentation 2

attempts: 1

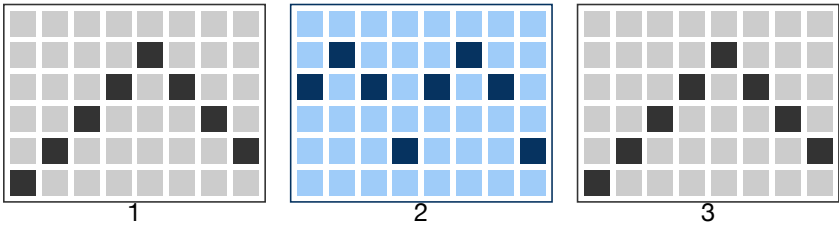

comment: "merrily strolling, seeing things"

Presentation 3

attempts: 1

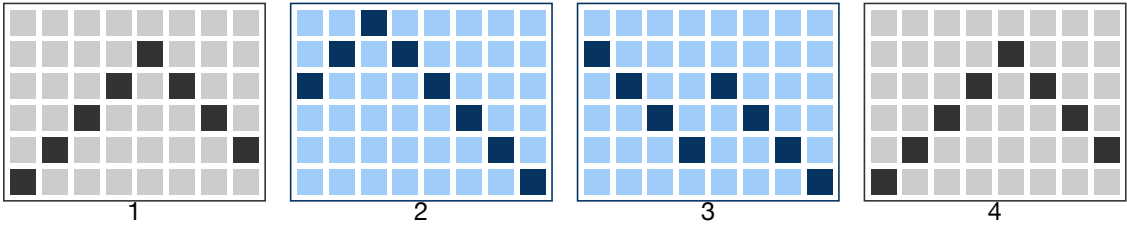

comment: "exciting middle! suspense!"

Presentation 4

attempts: 1

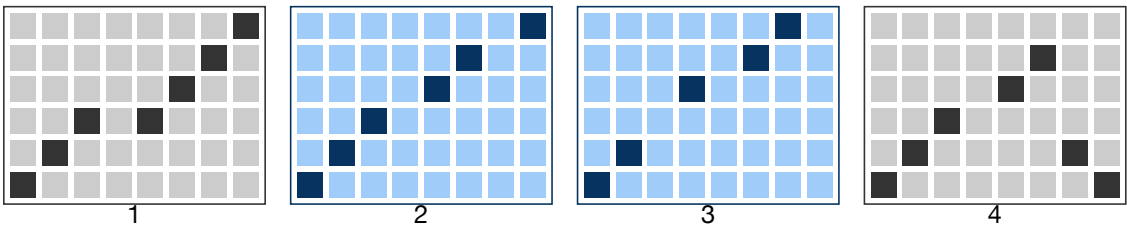

comment: "flows nicely, kind of a daily routine"

Presentation 5

attempts: 1

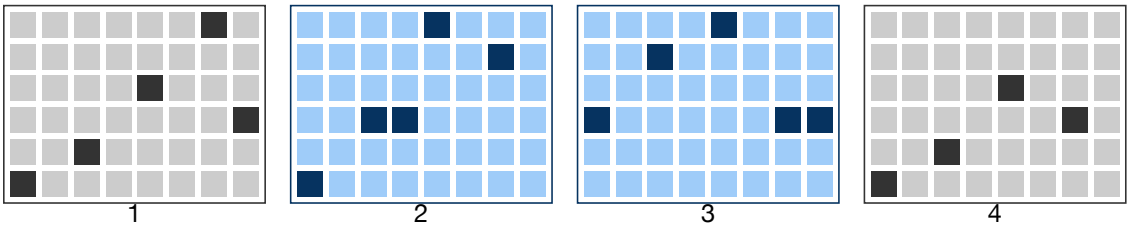

comment: "day routine with distractions and things that go wrong along the way"

Presentation 6

attempts: 1

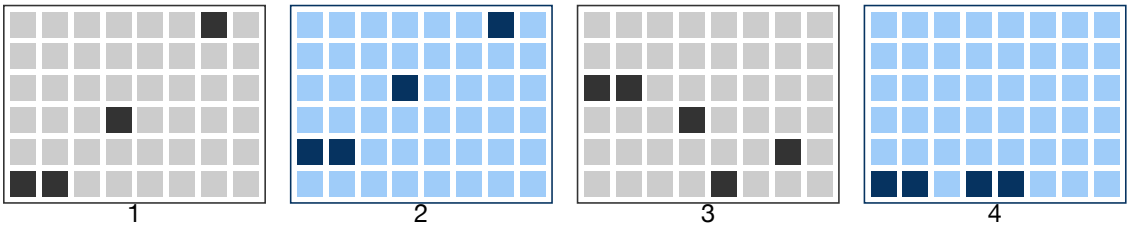

comment: "silly walk" [John Cleese]

Presentation 7

attempts: 1

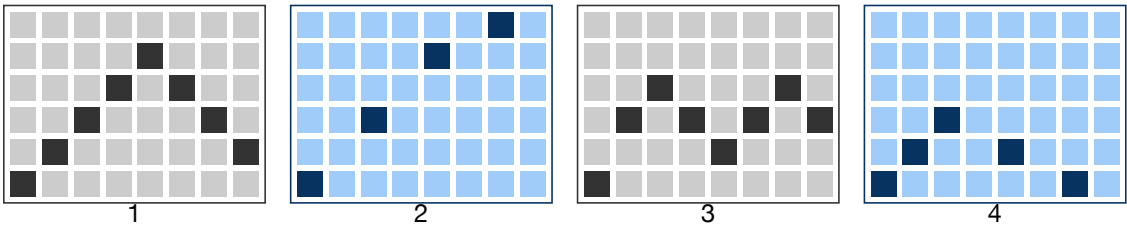

comment: "nice and closed, but not sure about a story..."

Presentation 8

attempts: 1

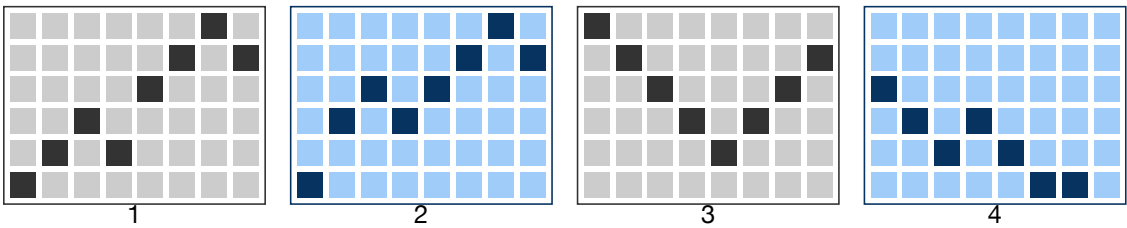

comment: "kind of a chase, like cat and dog, fox and hound"

Presentation 9

attempts: 1

comment: "not very happy, going up, then coming back, like mountains"

Storytelling exercise

attempts: 1

comment: "slow majestic entrance of an important person among a silent crowd, then people explode in cheers, then the person sits and makes everyone quiet"

